Our Team

Charles is a former RAF airman, author & experienced bushcraft instructor with a passion for sharing practical outdoor skills and helping people grow in confidence through nature.

Sophie is a former primary school teacher, Forest School practitioner, beekeeper & creative who brings warmth, empathy and a love of helping people flourish outdoors.

Together, they are supported by a dedicated team of outdoor experts, skilled instructors, and therapists, all united by a shared belief that time spent in nature brings out the best in people.

“A great location, a great team! Whittling and woodworking surrounded by friendly faces and birdsong – what’s not to like?!”

Heritage Woodland

We are based in 25 acres of private woodland, part of the Carclew Estate, which is deeply rooted in Cornwall's remarkable legacy of innovation, exploration, and natural science.

Developed by the influential Lemon family – prominent mine owners, industrialists, and patrons of horticulture, Carclew became one of Cornwall's great estates during the 18th & 19th centuries.

The family's success in mining and engineering helped shape Cornwall's contribution to the Industrial Revolution, while their passion for botany and landscape design transformed Carclew into a celebrated collection of rare plants, including the Rhododendron, which was sent by Sir Joseph Hooker directly from his Himalayan expedition of 1848.

Our woodland experiences embrace that heritage of exploration and learning. Through foraging, bushcraft, navigation, and guided outdoor activities, teams are encouraged to slow down, observe their environment, and reconnect with the natural world in a meaningful way.
